Mrs. Winifred Sloan of Norway sends us a clipping from a New York paper to help Harry Lovejoy on saving the "Silent Policemen." This clipping describes a solid steel post set in concrete, surmounted by a light. This is said to stop anything gas propels and refuses to be dismembered by careless drivers. This idea may prove the real thing—except to motorists.

DROWNED WHEN AUTO SKIDDED

Guy A. Buck and his five year old son, Sherwood, were drowned about 7.10 Sunday evening when the automobile in which they were riding plunged into Taylor brook, near Danville Junction. Mrs. Buck was thrown partly out of the car, and found hanging to one side of the auto, bruised and in a dazed condition. She was treated at the Central Maine General hospital. The family resided in Norway.

The accident occured as they were returning from a visit for the day with relatives in Auburn. According to Burton L. Dyer of Auburn, who witnessed the accident, Mr. Buck was driving at a moderate speed when he came onto the bridge, locally known as "Dead Man's Curve." The car appeared to skid and crashed through the railing, turned turtle and landed in the water upside down. A light snow covered the highway and traveling was extremely hazardous.

Rescuers procured a boat and removed Mrs. Buck from the wreck. She was hurried to the hospital in Mr. Dyer's automobile and received treatment for a slight cut on the forehead and nervous shock. Apparently she did not know the fate of her husband and son.

Members of the Auburn police force removed the bodies and a lungmotor was used to revive the child, but it was apparent the father was beyond recovery. After half an hour's work on the boy, there were no signs of life. The bodies were taken to Dillinghams funeral parlors in Auburn.

The position of the bodies under the car indicated that Mr. Buck realized the situation, and attempted to keep the child's above water.

Mr. Buck resided in Norway many years. He was a shoe maker and carpenter and for some four years carried on a farm near Norway Lake village. Some months since he sold the farm and moved to Alpine street, in the village for employment at the W. F. Tubbs Co. Mrs. Buck was formerly Etta Gammon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Frank Gammon of this village.

Guy A. Buck

Guy Allan Buck, a victim of the automobile accident near Auburn Sunday, Dec. 16, was the son of Charles Buck of Milton and the late Nellie Estes Buck. He was born in Woodstock thirty-five years ago where his early life was passed excepting for a short time in Milton.

About twenty years ago Mr. Buck came to Norway from West Paris and has resided here ever since. For a number of years he was employed in the B. F. Spinney & Co. factory as shoe cutter. In 1909 he married Henrietta Gammon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Franklyn Gammon of Norway A short time after Mr. and Mrs. Buck were engaged by John C. Shepard of Auburn to carry on the Shepard Farm above Crockett's Bridge, Norway. After a period of faithful service, they moved to the village where Mr. Buck was employed in the W. F. Tubbs Co. factory.

Some four years ago Mr. Buck bought the Ferdinand Swan farm near Norway Lake village, which was carried on until within a few months when the family moved to Alpine street and Mr. Buck returned to the W. F. Tubbs Co. factory, where he was considered a skillful workman. He was a democrat and not a member of any fraternal organization.

Besides his wife, he leaves his father, Charles Buck of Milton; three sisters, Mrs. Flora Farnum and Mrs. Minola Aldrich of South Paris and Mrs. Mary Farnum of Milton, also one brother, Leroy Buck of Buckfield.

Allan Sherwood Buck

The second victim of the Sunday accident, Allan Sherwood Buck, five year old son of the late Guy. A. Buck and Henrietta Gammon Buck, was born at Norway, Sept. 1, 1918. He was a general favorite and a cheerful, wide awake little fellow loved by all. Allan attended Sunday school at the Norway Baptist Church and in September next would have commenced his education in the public schools.

The remains of the father and son reposed in one casket, and were brought from Auburn Tuesday evening to the home of Mrs. Buck's parents on Pearl Street. Funeral services were held in the Baptist Church Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. H. F. Aldrich of West Paris and Rev. G. Howard Newton officiated. An appropriate hymn was sung by Harold Haskell of South Paris. The floral offerings were beautiful and effectively arranged about the casket and chancel.

The bearers were H. Ray Bennett, Olney Burgess, Eben Marston and George T. Tubbs. Burial was in Norway Pine Grove Cemetery.

Mrs. Cynthia H. Partridge

Cynthia H. Partridge, widow of Chas. W. Partridge, died early Thursday morning, Dec. 20, at the home of Chester Flint in North Norway. Her age was 86 yrs.

Mrs. Partridge was born in Paris, May 6, 1837, the daughter of Sumner and Harriet Shackley Hale. Her whole life was spent in Norway and until the last few years she lived in the Hale homestead near Norway Lake village.

On February 26, 1857, she married Charles W. Partridge of Norway and they settled at the Hale homestead where they lived until his death Their only child, Charles F. Partridge, passed away several years ago.

Funeral services attended by Rev. C. G. Miller, will be held at Spiller's Funeral Home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial in the family lot at Norway Center.

Mrs. Harriett MacDonald

Word was received Tuesday afternoon of the death in New York City of Mrs. Harriet Cole MacDonald, formerly of Norway. Mrs. MacDonald underwent a serious operation a short time ago, and a second was found necessary, but she failed to respond to treatment. She was born in Norway in November, 1870, the daughter of Mrs. Grace H. and the late William C. Cole. She received her education in the Norway schools and went to Boston where she found employment. She married Angus MacDonald and for many years they resided in Cambridge. Until within a few years, she has made a practice of coming home every summer. She leaves her mother, two brothers and a sister in Norway; H. H. Cole, Harry V. Cole and Mrs. Amy Carrier and a brother, John D. Cole, in Roxbury, Mass.

BASKET BALL

Bridgton Academy 40; N. H. S. 22

The lightening Bridgton five certainly got away with murder Friday night. Judging from the Bridgton lineup, which included "Beany" Stover, former Morse High star, and "Dave" Silverman, a former Biddeford High player, they must have been afraid of Norway. The crippled home outfit was not equal to the task before them, and the first half ended 18 to 12. So rapidly did "Joe" Roy's star decline that it had all the "earmarks" of a meteor. "Kandy Kid" Watson appeared to be bothered with heart trouble but made a good showing. "Manny" Palmer proved to be the "hero" of the Norway aggregation by neatly caging 5 goals and 1 foul.

Basket Ball News

The "Aggies" play West Paris High School at West Paris next Friday evening. Mexico and N. H. S. clash the same night at the Opera House. Ice Rink Nearly Ready For Use

Harry Lovejoy and Ed Rich are flooding the new skating rink on the Whitcomb lot just off Orchard street. If the weather man will lay down a hard crust of frozen earth to support the water, skating will be in order at short notice.

Water is taken from a hydrant on Greenleaf Ave., and conveyed through two hundred feet of fire hose to the spot. The rink was given first a good shower bath to "set" the earth, then flooding commenced. This was not a success for the ground being open, the water disappeared like magic. Tuesday was cold and another trial produced something real in the nature of ice. This process will be kept up until a good skating surface is produced.

The rink is 100x 200 feet with an electric light in the center and a place with wooden bank for hockey. Snow will be scraped off after storms and the spot kept open every day and evening except Sunday. There the children may sport and enjoy life, free from the dangers which cause anxiety to parents. The Norway Board of Trade, which is behind this movement, will open the rink to all, both young and old, but in any event the surface belongs to the youngsters. In case of crowded conditions the children have the preference.

Hocky games are among the plans for winter and it is expected clubs will be organized in the high school and churches for helpful competition.

The committee representing the Board of Trade comprises Stephen O. Jellerson, Ralph C. Andrews and Rev. O. B. Tracy.

Paris Christmas Wreathes

Harry Dudley, who lives on the W. J. Wheeler farm in Paris, was in town Tuesday, selling Christmas wreathes and boxes. These were made by his wife, who accompanied him. Harry said they started with a hundred and sold them all.

Some of the money was to be used in getting useful presents for his five children, who needed boots, shoes and clothing.

He also said he had cut, sawed and delivered in South Paris fifty cords of wood in the past few months.

Zilpha Higgins

Zilpha Higgins passed away in Auburn Tuesday, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Canwell, where she had been for treatment the past few weeks.

She was born in Norway on Jan. 31, 1897 and always lived here. Her parents were Charles and Angelia Robins Higgins. She made her home with her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Robbins, in Norway since the death of her mother many years ago. Her father passed away several years ago. She was frail from childhood and suffered from tubercular trouble and Bright's disease. She was a member of the Universalist Sunday school and Norway grange. She leaves her grandmother, one brother, Arthur Higgins, Auburn; a step brother, Ernest Higgins, who lives in Ohio and two step sisters, Gertrude Higgins, Norway, and Mrs. Bertha Adams, Oakland.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at Spiller's Funeral Home, Rev. C. G. Miller officiated. Burial was at Norway Pine Grove Cemetery.

Baseball Meeting and Report

The Twin Town Athletic Association with friends and others are to meet at the sales room of the Norway Buick Co., Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock to map out plans for the future and talk over the past.

Everyone interested should be present.

Community Christmas Exercises

The third annual Community Christmas gathering under the supervision of the Norway Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Grange hall Tuesday evening, and was well attended. Mrs. Jennie Bates Russell, President of the Union, was in charge of the exercises.

Pupils from the graded schools opened the exercises by singing a number of carols with their music teacher, Mrs. Mary Mealand Stone, at the piano. Rev. T. C. Chapman of the Methodist Episcopal church read the Christmas story recorded in the gospel of Saint Luke. Prayer was offiered by Rev. O. B. Tracy of the Congregational church.

The delightful playlet, "The Court of King Christmas," was produced in two acts by pupils from the 4th and 5th grades under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Brown and Mrs. Stone with Daisy Chase, accompanist. Charlote Longley was Santa Claus surrounded by a court of six girls and six boys, with numerous characters from Mother Goose rhymes to come before that group for judgment. This was an entertaining story nicely costumed and well done.

Mrs. Russell talked to the children and explained why Christmas is observed, and especially the reasons for Community exercises when gifts are brought to the tree for distribution in families not able to provide these things. Mrs. Russell thanked the fraternal organizations, churches and individuals who contributed in any way for this cause.

After the gifts were assembled about the illuminated tree, several carols were sung and the children marched about the hall. Each received a bag of pop corn and some time was spent in a social way.

A large quantity of clothing, shoes and other necessary articles with toys, sweets and fruit will be distributed by the Boy Scouts and other volunteers. Mrs. Russell's workers have canvassed the village the past few weeks and secured a list of articles necessary to bring comfort and the Christmas spirit into numerous homes. There has been system in the canvess, and if possible no worthy persons will be overlooked. Every effort has been made to provide first, warm serviceable clothing, or medecine and dainties for invalids, and food. Other remembrances will follow in natural order. Many vegetables brought to the hall Tuesday were distributed that day.

Mrs. Russell states that there are fewer appeals for assistance than last Christmas, and practically no destitution. This is, no doubt, the result of year round work performed by the Union in releiving many cases as they are searched out.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

Come to Hundreds of Norway People

There are days of dizziness;

Spells of headache, languor, backache;

Sometimes rheumatic pains;

Often urinary disorders.

Doan's Pills are especially for kidney ills.

Endorsed in Norway by grateful friends and neighbors.

Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. W. J. Olmstead, 95 Main St., Norway, says: "My kidneys began to give me trouble as they were weak. My back ached so badly I could hardly get through with my housework and everything I undertook to do seemed a drag. I was dizzy and could see star-like spots before my eyes. My feet and ankles swelled. I read about Doan's Pills being good and sent for some. When I had finished taking them, I felt as well as ever. The backache ceased and my kidneys became regulated. I have told a number of people about Doan's.

BRYANT'S POND

James M. Day

Bryant Pond lost one of it's most public spirited and influential citizens in the death of James M. Day, which occured at his home here Sunday morning, Dec. 9, after an illness of eight weeks.

Mr. Day was stricken with angina pectoris on Oct. 14, rallied for a few days then became worse and was under the care of two trained nurses for several weeks. A few days before his death he suffered a paralytic shock.

Mr. Day was the son of Elijah and Mahala (Jackson) Day, and was born in Woodstock July 31, 1853. He received his education in the public schools of Woodstock and has always been a resident of the town.

Mr. Day was united in marriage with Miss Etta Cole, daughter of William Henry and Albina (Berry) Cole in 1874. For many years they lived on the home farm in the Whitman neighborhood. In 1907 he built the house at Bryant Pond where he resided up to the time of his death. During the same year his daughter, Matoira, wife of Benjamin R. Billings, died leaving an infant son, James Day Billings, to the care of his grandparents. Since his wife's death Mr. Billings has made his home with Mr. Day and has been associated with him in the wood and pulp business.

Mrs. Day died in 1910 and the young grandson has since been the object of Mr. Day's constant love and devotion. He also leaves an adopted daughter, Laura, wife of Edward Linscott of Bluehill, who was with him in his last illness.

Mrs. Claire Hathaway, his housekeeper for nearly nine years, has been a faithful caretaker of the home.

Mr. Day was a member of Jefferson Lodge, F. and A. M., the Royal Arch Chapter, Council and Ark Mariners, Jefferson Chapter, O. E. S., Knights of Pythias, Uniform Rank, Pythian Sisters and Franklin Grange. He was a Past Master of Jefferson Lodge and the first Patron of the O. E. S. Mr. Day was a highly respected citizen, a kind neighbor and a loyal friend. He was always ready to help the needy and unfortunate. He had a deep and unfailing interest in the growth of the town and in the progress and welfare of the school which has received many tokens of his generosity. Relatives, friends, neighbors and school children unite in mourning his loss.

The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Universalist Church attended by Rev. C. G. Miller of South Paris. The Masonic burial service was impressively given. The fraternal organizations attended in a body. The profusion of beautiful flowers showed the love and esteem in which he was held.

EAST OTISFIELD

Hartley P. Greenleaf and two boys, Henry and Ernest of Auburn, were over Sunday guests at Broadview farm. The boys remained with their grandparents for their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Smith of Auburn were Sunday guests of their father, W. F. Smith.

The scholars, with some of their parents on Otisfield Gore, gave Auriette Losier a surprise party on the evening of Dec. 7, in honor of her 13th birthday. A delightful evening was passed listening on the radio and playing games. Cake, coffee, and fudge were served. At a late hour her friends wished her many happy returns of the day and bade her good-night. Her schoolmates brought her presents which were much appreciated.

Charles Thurlow and Walter Ham of Auburn are cutting wood for H. A. Andrews.

Mrs. Cora Thurlow took a trip to Lewiston last Sunday, returning home, Tuesday.

Schools in town close this week for the holiday recess.

Mrs. Mabel Peaco has been visiting in Gardiner She returned home last week.

SWEDEN

Quite a change in the weather last week 85 above and Tuesday 9 degrees above zero.

George Davis came up Sunday afternoon and stopped over night at E. S. Plummer's.

Enfield and Wendall Plummer killed their hog, Monday. It dressed some over 360 lbs. They got hungry and couldn't wait for Charles Saunders to come home from Florida to kill it.

People are cutting wood and getting ready to log when the snow gets along and it seems as though everybody that had a pine tree was going to cut it this winter.

Wendall Plummer is helping Ernest Abbott repair the town rollers and taking in all the dances that are within reach of him. Monday night he went to Fryeburg to stop over night with his cousin and attend the dance at Brownfield.

Automobiles are scarce articles on our roads now, the roads are so rough one needs a lantern to get along over them in the day time.

THE COMPLETED VILLAGE

Stopping in a small town, a traveling man said to a prospective customer:

"It has been 20 years since I was here last. Many new buiildings gone up since then?"

"No," replied the resident, "none that I know of."

"Any new railroads or street cars?"

"No."

"Planning any improvements?"

"No."

"Well," said the traveling man, "I've been all over this country, and this is the first town I have ever seen that is what you might call actually finished."

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

While all kinds of advertising is profitable, if the advertising copy is right and its insertion timely, nevertheless it is becoming generally recognized that the newspapers are the great mediums for reaching the masses, or the public at large. They cover the field in a manner that cannot be duplicated by any other medium, they carry what the people want, the news of the day, and they are read with exceptional thoroughnesss by every member of the family, the advertisements included. In fact, the reading public is perusing the advertisements which the newspapers are carrying almost as conscientiously as it does the news, and the business which does not advertise its wares through the medium of the newspapers is in a fair way to encounter defeat in disposing of the products which it has to sell.

The State of Maine Publicity Bureau is one of the large buyers of advertising space today which has proven that newspaper advertising pays, for practically all of its work has been done through newspapers.

A large concern wished to develop its business through the Middle West and recently decided on a newspaper campaign to attain its end. The result of the two weeks advertising is extremely interesting. In the first place the total gross value of business secured during the two weeks period amounted to nearly 33 per cent more than the gross cost of the newspaper campaign for the entire first year. The average sales cost for securing each dealer was only $1.68. The average order per dealer was over $40, and the percentage of sales expense to gross business secured was only 4.1 per cent.

The recent success of the Associated Industries in defeating the 48-hour law, at the special election in this state held a short time ago, is attributed largely to the educational campaign which it conducted through the advertising columns of the Maine newspapers.

One of the largest yeast concerns in the world has kept a careful record of the results of its advertising, and it has found that the marked increases in net income parallel the years when the company was increasing its newspaper advertising.

Another large manufacturer has been quoted as saying he considers that his company has absolutely proven that distribution can be secured and sales established for a specialty solely by newspaper advertising.

Any of the great selling agencies of the day who kept a careful record of their advertising will commend newspaper advertising for quick returns and excellent results. It is the standard form of advertising for the great National advertisers, for the local merchants, for places of amusement, for the transportation companies and, in fact, for anyone, or any class of business that has anything to sell or wishes to attract the attention of the public in any manner whatsoever.

THE ADVANTAGES OF AMERICA

The one thing above all others that has given modern conveniences to the common everyday American citizen has been the character of our government which encouraged the individual of enterprise to go ahead and develop industries unhampered by stifling interference and official control such as experienced in other nations.

The following facts speak for themselves and are a testimonial as to the advantage of the American system contrasted with methods which discourage private initiative.

The use of manufactured gas in Great Britain, where the industry was born a century and a quarter ago, is steadily increasing and last year totaled 232,600,000,000 cubic feet, or 5524 cubic feet per capita on a population basis of 42,000,000.

New York State alone, where first manufactured gas company was established in 1823, has developed a per capita use of gas nearly double this amount, with an estimated production this year of approximately 90 billion cubic feet.

The production of electrical energy in Great Britain last year reached a high total of 5,738,700,000 kilowatt huors, whereas New York State this year will use approximately 9,000,000,000 kilowatt hours or nearly 800 kw. h. for each person in the State, as against 134 kw h. for each person in the State, as against 134 kw. h. for each of the 42,000,000 persons in Great Britain.

When it comes to telephones, there is one for every 13 people in the nation, something unheard of in any other country in the world.

Send in items of news that you wish your friends to hear; and provided it will stand the ordinary newspaper tests you will find it in the next issue, if it is accompanied by the name of the sender.

ANNOUNCEMENT

After talking with many of my friends in various parts of Oxford County, believing that the nomination should go to the Western part of the county, I have decided to become a candidate for the Republican nomination of Sheriff in the coming June Primaries.

I was born and raised in Oxford County; have always been a Republican, and have held the office of Deputy Sheriff.

I should greatly appreciate the support of all Republicans at the Primaries, and if nominated and elected, pledge to give in return for the confidence reposed in me, honest and impartial enforcement of all the laws for all the people.

Friend wife was visiting her mother, and dear "hubby" was endeavoring to survive as best he could. Each evening by means of the telephone they learned the good or bad news of the day. On a certain eventful evening during the course of the conversation the wife inquired of her devoted mate as to his actions of the present moment. Being a truthful chap our hero replied that if the truth was demanded, he was washing his B. V. D.'s. At this juncture Central sang out in an awe-inspiring voice, "I'm ringing them for you!" Whereupon the family cat turned a back somersault and another divorce case was in the offing.

DRESSING GAME

Many odd jobs fall to the lot of the hunter and among these one of the least pleasant but equally important is the knowledge of how to properly dress game in the field.

Time and money are freely spent by the big game hunter for the sake of getting even a single shot at a desirable head. Frequently both are lost through inexperience with the butchering knife. Pass the job on to someone else if you can, and if you can't roll up your sleeves, take an extra notch in your mid-section belt, and go to it. Remember first, last and all times, these cardinal points:

First, don't cut the animal on the throat. Second, don't cut the hide off with a short neck. Third, don't dry the hide in the sun. Fourth, don't roll up the hide until it's dry. Taxidermy is an art in itself and with this we have nothing to do in this chapter except to prepare the skin in the field for more finished work at the bench later.

Suppose it's a deer. Twist the head to one side, throat down hill, then stick the knife in at the point of the breast. This will permit the blood to run without streaming over hide—work the blade in deep until the blood vessels are severed. After bleeding, make an incision down the back of the neck from just between the antlers to the shoulder blade. Make incisions then from each antlers to meet the line just cut. Skin until ears are reached and detach close to the skull. Proceed carefully to the eyes and the nostrils. Cut the lips close to the teeth—the skin is now separated from the skull. Pull it off and then remove from the skin every particle of fat and flesh. Skin out the ears and lips, then stretch the hide to dry, naturally in a cool place. If the weather is damp the skin should be salted and gotten to the taxidermist as soon as possible.

There are no set rules for butchering game. Conditions vary so that a lengthy description of what to do under one circumstance would have no application under another. Few novices go into big game country unaccompanied by a guide and the latter will take care of this work. Every hunter, however should have a general knowledge. Go to your butcher shop or local abattoir. The operations there will stand you in hand later.

Simple When You Know How

At best it's a simple matter. Skin the deer while yet warm. Hang him by one hind leg, cut the skin from the top joint to the second joint of the leg. Make an incision around the back and then skin downward. Handle gently and the skin will peel easily. Cut the skin down the center of the belly to the breast, but do not cut into the flesh. Gently but firmly draw the skin of the whole carcass. A sharp knife is needed. After the deer is skinned, hang him up by both hind legs, insert knife in belly and rip up belly. Keep the deer open with a double pronged stick. Reach in above the kidneys and release the entrails. Then take out liver, heart and lights. If possible let deer hang twenty-four hours. Broiled liver will help to make the decision.

Take your axe, split from neck to tail, divide into four quarters and hind quarters. The meat is now ready for the epicure.

It is well to carry a few yards of cheese cloth dipped in alum water to wrap around meat as flies gather quickly around fresh butchered meat.

To cure a ham of venison use the following recipe: Salt 3 pounds, allspice 4 tablespoonfuls, black pepper 5 tablespoonfuls, mix thoroughly and rub over the meat. Deer is better the longer it is hung. Bear meat requires much salt to cure it, other game does not. Remember that salt has a tendency to dram the juices. The live weight of a deer may be computed from the dressed weights as follows: Add five ciphers to the dressed weight in pounds and divide by 78,612. The quotient will be the weight in pounds.

Birds should be dry picked and preferably when they are still warm. Clean immediately and thoroughly dry the inside after entrails have been drawn. To keep birds in warm weather, stuff insides with dry charcoal from the camp fire and wrap in a cloth. To keep fish in camp, kill them by striking with blunt instrument as soon as caught, later cut off the heads, clean, then string thru the tail and hang them head down in a cool, breezy place.

Tanning the hide of a deer is a simple matter provided one is indifferent to the amount of manual labor attached. There are receipts on the market by the ton, some contain sulphuric acid, some lye and some other agents. None will do the trick as effectively as elbow grease and plenty of it. The hide must be softened and the hair taken off with a knife that has a scraping and not a cutting edge. A hide will grain better the way the hair runs. The hide must be pulled and stretched until every blood vessel, small as they are, is broken, and it will be rubbed soft quicker if the deer brains are rubbed into it. Buckskin must be smoked, otherwise it will dry after a wetting.—Independent Reporter.

TOO MUCH TALK OF DISEASE

While it is all very well for eminent physicians to travel over the country telling the people what they ought to do and what they ought not to do to keep in good health and to live to a good old age, or more, it is a question whether the average man and woman would not be better off physically and mentally, if they did not pay quite so much attention to their own alleged ailments and kept their minds on their daily business and daily pleasure.

Our ancestors, many of whom lived to a green old age and departed quietly, did not know a single rule of health and took their daily dozen with the hoe or the broom. They at what they wanted, or could get, thought little of the matter after the meal, and seemed to enjoy themselves about as we do or better.

It is all very well to keep clean, sleep several hours every night, eat moderately and exercise reasonably, but to devote one's time to thinking of what to eat and what to wear so as to comply with the modern health rules often involves the harboring of the very disease or trouble against which the rules are supposed to guard.

We are for the doctors; we like them but, honest-to-goodness, we are feeling fairly comfortable and our blood pressure is what it always was and what our fathers' blood pressure was before it was discovered. If the doctors will not tell you how badly off we are, the chances are we will never discover it for ourselves and thus remain comparatively happy to the end of our days.

Friend wife was visiting her mother, and dear "hubby" was endeavoring to survive as best he could. Each evening by means of the telephone they learned the good or bad news of the day. On a certain eventful evening during the course of the conversation the wife inquired of her devoted mate as to his actions of the present moment. Being a truthful chap our hero replied that if the truth was demanded, he was washing his B. V. D.'s. At this juncture Central sang out in an awe-inspiring voice, "I'm ringing them for you!" Whereupon the family cat turned a back somersault and another divorce case was in the offing.

DRESSING GAME

Many odd jobs fall to the lot of the hunter and among these one of the least pleasant but equally important is the knowledge of how to properly dress game in the field.

Time and money are freely spent by the big game hunter for the sake of getting even a single shot at a desirable head. Frequently both are lost through inexperience with the butchering knife. Pass the job on to someone else if you can, and if you can't roll up your sleeves, take an extra notch in your mid-section belt, and go to it. Remember first, last and all times, these cardinal points:

First, don't cut the animal on the throat. Second, don't cut the hide off with a short neck. Third, don't dry the hide in the sun. Fourth, don't roll up the hide until it's dry. Taxidermy is an art in itself and with this we have nothing to do in this chapter except to prepare the skin in the field for more finished work at the bench later.

Suppose it's a deer. Twist the head to one side, throat down hill, then stick the knife in at the point of the breast. This will permit the blood to run without streaming over hide—work the blade in deep until the blood vessels are severed. After bleeding, make an incision down the back of the neck from just between the antlers to the shoulder blade. Make incisions then from each antlers to meet the line just cut. Skin until ears are reached and detach close to the skull. Proceed carefully to the eyes and the nostrils. Cut the lips close to the teeth—the skin is now separated from the skull. Pull it off and then remove from the skin every particle of fat and flesh. Skin out the ears and lips, then stretch the hide to dry, naturally in a cool place. If the weather is damp the skin should be salted and gotten to the taxidermist as soon as possible.

There are no set rules for butchering game. Conditions vary so that a lengthy description of what to do under one circumstance would have no application under another. Few novices go into big game country unaccompanied by a guide and the latter will take care of this work. Every hunter, however should have a general knowledge. Go to your butcher shop or local abattoir. The operations there will stand you in hand later.

Simple When You Know How

At best it's a simple matter. Skin the deer while yet warm. Hang him by one hind leg, cut the skin from the top joint to the second joint of the leg. Make an incision around the back and then skin downward. Handle gently and the skin will peel easily. Cut the skin down the center of the belly to the breast, but do not cut into the flesh. Gently but firmly draw the skin of the whole carcass. A sharp knife is needed. After the deer is skinned, hang him up by both hind legs, insert knife in belly and rip up belly. Keep the deer open with a double pronged stick. Reach in above the kidneys and release the entrails. Then take out liver, heart and lights. If possible let deer hang twenty-four hours. Broiled liver will help to make the decision.

Take your axe, split from neck to tail, divide into four quarters and hind quarters. The meat is now ready for the epicure.

It is well to carry a few yards of cheese cloth dipped in alum water to wrap around meat as flies gather quickly around fresh butchered meat.

To cure a ham of venison use the following recipe: Salt 3 pounds, allspice 4 tablespoonfuls, black pepper 5 tablespoonfuls, mix thoroughly and rub over the meat. Deer is better the longer it is hung. Bear meat requires much salt to cure it, other game does not. Remember that salt has a tendency to dram the juices. The live weight of a deer may be computed from the dressed weights as follows: Add five ciphers to the dressed weight in pounds and divide by 78,612. The quotient will be the weight in pounds.

Birds should be dry picked and preferably when they are still warm. Clean immediately and thoroughly dry the inside after entrails have been drawn. To keep birds in warm weather, stuff insides with dry charcoal from the camp fire and wrap in a cloth. To keep fish in camp, kill them by striking with blunt instrument as soon as caught, later cut off the heads, clean, then string thru the tail and hang them head down in a cool, breezy place.

Tanning the hide of a deer is a simple matter provided one is indifferent to the amount of manual labor attached. There are receipts on the market by the ton, some contain sulphuric acid, some lye and some other agents. None will do the trick as effectively as elbow grease and plenty of it. The hide must be softened and the hair taken off with a knife that has a scraping and not a cutting edge. A hide will grain better the way the hair runs. The hide must be pulled and stretched until every blood vessel, small as they are, is broken, and it will be rubbed soft quicker if the deer brains are rubbed into it. Buckskin must be smoked, otherwise it will dry after a wetting.—Independent Reporter.

TOO MUCH TALK OF DISEASE

While it is all very well for eminent physicians to travel over the country telling the people what they ought to do and what they ought not to do to keep in good health and to live to a good old age, or more, it is a question whether the average man and woman would not be better off physically and mentally, if they did not pay quite so much attention to their own alleged ailments and kept their minds on their daily business and daily pleasure.

Our ancestors, many of whom lived to a green old age and departed quietly, did not know a single rule of health and took their daily dozen with the hoe or the broom. They at what they wanted, or could get, thought little of the matter after the meal, and seemed to enjoy themselves about as we do or better.

It is all very well to keep clean, sleep several hours every night, eat moderately and exercise reasonably, but to devote one's time to thinking of what to eat and what to wear so as to comply with the modern health rules often involves the harboring of the very disease or trouble against which the rules are supposed to guard.

We are for the doctors; we like them but, honest-to-goodness, we are feeling fairly comfortable and our blood pressure is what it always was and what our fathers' blood pressure was before it was discovered. If the doctors will not tell you how badly off we are, the chances are we will never discover it for ourselves and thus remain comparatively happy to the end of our days.

Roger Hutchins of Brooklyn, N. Y., was first to play Santa Claus with the editorial staff at this office. Fred Sanborn received a pair of rubber heels of exclusive design. These will be attached at the first opportunity. Walter Chandler captured a pair of rubber soles (not souls), the non skidding kind and probably good for 5006 miles. Roger once worked in Norway and knows the terrible punishment shoes get on our streets and by-ways. He also contributed a number of interesting programs from churches, lodges and sporting clubs in which he is interested.

Pansies in full bloom were observed in the yard of Mrs. Herbert A. Rich on Friday and later. The floral department in nature is working beyond union hours this fall.

Charlie Sharpe otherwise known as "Sharpie," is telling the world his new 16 foot ice boat is not a myth or something owned by King Tut. This ship will sail with a Liberty motor behind the propeller, and skim over the frozen surface of Lake Pennesseewassee like rings in a ping pong game. "Sharpie" plans to carry passengers of the good sporting type and not afraid of speed.

George H. Bennett, the carriage painter, celebrated his seventieth birthday on Wednesday. He learned carriage making in Bethel with Horace Andrews nearly fifty years ago, and has been able to carry the entire process through from the raw materials to a completed vehicle. He is at the bench every day and assists Fred Davis and Lowell Cleveland who are at the head of affairs at the Bennett shop. His health is improving rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gary have moved into their new bungalow on Whitman street.

Millettville and Crockett Ridge

Millettville School Social

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Millett opened their big farm house for the Millettville school to hold a Pie Social there on Friday night last. There were about fifty present to enjoy the fun. Guessing beans in a bottle brought in dimes fast and the lucky man got a fine walnut cake. A Christmasy looking cake with pink frosting and a tiny pine tree in it was sold by guessing the spills on the tree. Pop corn in numebred bags was sold during the evening.

The pies were auctioned off by Fred Lovejoy and the littlest tots pies were sold separately and it was fun to see them bid them up just like "big folks" and then pair off to feast on them.

There were games and singing of old songs and it was midnight before anyone realized. Miss Greenleaf, the teacher, felt very grateful to all for their hearty cooperation in making it a success financially as well as socially.

The school aspires to the ownership of a victrola but just what they will purchase with the funds will not be decided until after Christmas.

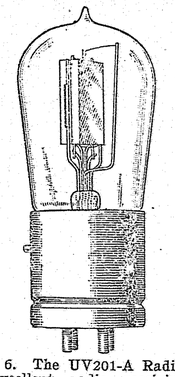
RADIO RECEIVING SETS

By Harry F. Dart, E. E.



Article 6. The UV201-A Radio Tube

An excellent radio receiving tube for storage battery use in the UV201-A, which is similiar to the C301-A. This tube, which is shown in the accompanying figure, has a very high degree of vacuum and is, therefore, a hard tube. It therefore makes an excellent amplifier tube, and with a grid leak and condenser, will operate well as a detector. It is of the usual three-element type, and is equipped with a large standard base.

The thoriated filament, as used in this tube, is capable of giving off a very large number of electrons even when the filament is burned at a relatively low temperature. Due to this low temperature, the life of the filament is very long. The nature of the filament is such that the end useful life may be reached before the filament burns out. Sometimes it is possible to revive the filament by burning it at normal voltage or current for 10 to 20 minutes with the plate battery disconnected.

The UV201-A tube is rated to take .25 ampere with 5 volts on the filament. It is, therefore, possible to operate the tube by setting either the filament voltage or current to the rated value. It is often possible to decrease the filament voltage and current considerably below the rated value and still get good signals. When possible this should be done as it prolongs the life of the filament. Burning the tube at excessive filament voltage will soon destroy the special activation of the filament, and reduce the life very materially.

The usual 6- to 10-ohm rheostat will be found very effective in controlling the filament current of this tube, although a rheostat of higher resistance may be used. It is desirable to use a vernier adjustment on the rheostat for the detector tube, as its adjustment is often helpful when tuning in distant stations. The various types of carbon rheostats are very good as they give a steady control of the current. The characteristics of the tubes are near enough alike that one rheostat may be used on two amplifier tubes but it is preferable to have an individual control on the detector tube.

The operation of an amplifier tube depends not only upon it's amplification constant, but also upon it's output impedance. The ratio of these two properties is a measure of the effectiveness of the tube, and the higher this ratio the better control the grid will have over the plate current; that is, with a tube such as this, a grid potential change of one volt, for example, will change the plate current over a larger range than will be the case in a tube with a low ratio. The design of this type of tube is such as to give good electrical characteristics to the tube as well as to the filament.

The plate potential should be about 40 volts when the UV201-A tube is used as a detector. Higher plate voltage on a hard detector tube increases the B battery discharge without appreciably increasing the signal strength. The grid return should also be connected with the positive terminal of the A battery with a hard detector tube such as this type. The grid condenser should be about .00025 microfarad, and the grid leak should have a resistance from 1 to 6 megohm (1 megohm = 1,000,000 ohms). In general the higher resistance should be used on weak signals when there is little static. Although this is considered as a storage-battery tube, good results will be obtained with a one-tube set if used with 4 dry cells in series. The dry cells should be able to operate the filament of one such tube at a good temperature, from 75 to 100 hours.

The negative grid bias for the UV201-A as an amplifier need be only .5 to 1 volt with 40 volts on the plate. This may be secured by utilizing the voltage drop in the filament rheostat. This means that the rheostat should be connected in the negative battery lead, and that the grid return should connect to the negative terminal of the A battery. For 60 volts on the plate the bias grid should be between 1.5 to 3 volts. With 80 volts on the plate, 3 to 4.5 volts will be desirable as a bias, and with 100 volts the bias should be from 4.5 to 6 volts. Small flashlight cells or good units out of old B batteries will work well in this service.

THE RADIO HOG

The road hog, who takes the middle of the road and holds it, regardless of other drivers, is a familiar spectacle. The radio hog, a new development, is still more exasperating, because he discommodes so many more people.

Just as several thousand listeners have tuned in and settled down happily to the enjoyment of a fine radio concert, the music is interrupted by a loud voice butting in and calling some other amateur. If the voice makes connections, it may go ahead and hold the air for half an hour, drowning out everything else and forcing the big, widely scattered audience either to listen to a lot of drivel of no general interest whatever, or to shut off the instrument in disgust.

The worst thing about such interruptions is that the decent people, handling their radio sets with due regard to law and courtesy, are helpless. They cannot tell usually who the boorish butterin is, and they are powerless to talk back.

If the radio is to realize it's full possibilities for purpose of social enjoyment and instruction, some way will have to be found to eliminate these hogs.

There are times and wave-lengths enough for ameteur communications and experiments, as there should be, without interrupting public programs. But they are not sufficiently heeded or enforced.

WILL YOUR ROAD STAY OPEN THIS WINTER?

A good road with a boulder blocking it is of no more value than if it did not exist. For "boulder" read "snow" and get the problem which the middle and northern half of the United States has to face every year. A good road covered with deep snow is of no more value than if it did not exist!

The Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture makes a definite effort each year to try to interest more and more highway officials in the matter of keeping snow-bound roads open to traffic. More and more every year both State highway departments and county road officials are seeing the wisdom of spending some money for snow removal.

Experiment has proved that a snow plough attached to a wagon and pulled by two or four horses, can clear, inexpensively, enough of a highway of snow to enable it to be used. On very well traveled roads a complete removal is necessary, but for many highways a partial snow shoveling meets the demands of the traffic, naturally lowered in amount by cold weather.

It is slowly but surely becoming recognized that the main roads are as much needed to keep down the cost of living as are the main streets of cities and towns. The individual shovels his own path from door to street; the town shoulders the responsibility of keeping the street open to traffic; why should not the county keep it's main trunk line roads open and the State do the same service for it's principal highways?

In its last analysis it is up to the voter; if he wants open roads he can have them by saying so. If he wants to save money by being snowed up, he is the greatest sufferer!

Build For the Future

"Who builds for the present, builds only for the past," was not written of good roads but it is as true of them as temples and meeting halls. The organization which, knowing it is growing, builds only for its present membership, soon finds it has built too small. The "present" which soon comes, brings a membership too big for the building.

The hard road built just big enough, wide enough, strong enough, well enough for today's traffic, is built for tomorrow, too, only when it is known that the traffic does not, cannot grow.

But there are few places where traffic does not grow!

The village of today is the thriving town of tomorrow. The town of today is the big city of tomorrow, and the big city of the immediate moment becomes the huge city of the next one!

New roads should always be built for tomorrow; never, for today. For "tomorrow" soon becomes "today" and the road, big enough and to spare for the present needs, is speedily used up to it's capacity. To paraphrase the quotation, "Only he who builds for the future, builds for the present!"

Here is a Substantial Business Opening

Nash now Offers you an Opportunity to go into the Automobile Business

In every community throughout the country men are achieving success in the automobile business.

Maybe you, too, have had thoughts of establishing yourself as a motor car dealer.

Now Nash opens the way. Nash regards this town as an excellent territory, rich with possibilities.

The automobile business is just entering its most profitable period. Authorities state that next year will be far greater than any previous year in the industry.

This Town is to Have a Nash Dealer

Some man in some other business, perhaps some man now on a salary, is going to get the Nash contract in this town.

Few contracts in the industry are deemed as valuable a prize as the Nash franchise.

Who will get it in this town? It can be you—if you go after it.

If you have a good record, if your standing in this town is good, if you have a fair amount of capital, you will get immediate consideration.

If you have longed for a money-making opportunity you can avail yourself of it now.

Shortly our representative will come and select the man.

Only Moderate Capital Required

You don't have to have a lot of money to make your start with the Nash line.

If you have moderate resources don't fail to see our representative.

He will show you how to plan your affairs, how to acquire a line of credit, all the details of getting started in your own business.

If you delay others may seize this chance. Act decisively. That's how men rise to successful places.

Link Your Name With C. W. Nash

Scarcely 7 years ago C. W. Nash left the presidency of the General Motors Company to found his own company.

Proceeding conservatively yet progressively he has quickly built up one of the most sound and solid successes in American industry.

It is this man and this company that beckon you to join them in great plans for the coming years.

Already hundreds upon hundreds of men are now owners of growing businesses because of their association with him.

Nash Motors is on the Upward Climb

The profits of the automobile business are centering themselves more and more around a few big, strong companies.

Your chance to make real money and expand your business lies in a connection with a company such as Nash.

Last year Nash built approximately 42,000 cars. This year Nash sales will rise to 60,000.

And practically all the time the great factories at Kenosha and Milwaukee have been behind in production.

You Handle Both Fours and Sixes

One of the advantages of the Nash contract is that it gives you both Fours and Sixes to sell.

That means a wide market and big volume. The price range runs from $915 to $2190.

This is the field of greatest opportunity. And the discount terms are highly favorable.

C. W. Nash believes firmly in the Nash dealer—the dealer's success is the basis of Nash Motors' success, he says.

Nash Dealers Show as High as 187% Sales Increase

This year Nash dealers are recording great gains over last year's business.

Some report 60% increase, some 80%, some 100% and better, some as high as 150%, and two reached the height of 187%.

These men are making money. You can do the same.

Everywhere the trend of preference among buyers toward Nash cars is gaining in vigor and volume.

Now is the time for you to take advantage of this country-wide good-will for the Nash product.

The pioneering is past. Step into a Nash contract and begin to reap the profits.

Future of Business Exceeds all Prophecies

No one has ever been able to visualize the tremendous possibilities of the automobile business.

All prophecies as to its size have fallen sadly below the actual facts.

One of America's greatest executives said publicly 15 years ago that based on 1900 census statistics only 5% of all families had incomes that placed them in the automobile class.

That meant approximately 795,000 families. Today's figures show how greatly the market surpassed his calculations.

For 5% of all families in 1923 would only reach a figure of 1,400,000.

And yet more than 12,000,000 families now own cars.

On top of this come prophecies from independent analysts who estimate even a bigger volume of sales in 1924 than during 1923.

Men of Every Class are Winning Automobile Success

Bakers, and butchers, bankers, implement dealers, traveling men, restaurant owners, garage owners, clerical workers, miners, grocers, hardware merchants, salesmen of every class have entered the automobile business and are making good.

There's no special training necessary. Use common sense and sell a line of cars nationally known and nationally liked such as Nash cars.

Many a man who faced discouragement in another line of endeavor has made himself well-off selling motor cars.

Don't hesitate over this opportunity. If you fail to take advantage of it you'll likely condemn yourself a year from now.

Where Can You Find a Finer Prospect?

Look about you. Where do you see a more certain way to acquire the independence you seek?

The Nash contract in this town awaits some man.

Will you be the fortunate one? It depends entirely upon you.

Be guided by these other thousands who are today rising higher and higher.

Note the Strength of Nash Motors

Nash Motors stands out today as one of the strongest companies in the industry.

Close to $24,000,000 it holds in cash and government securities. It has no bonded indebtedness. It owes no bank.

Guided by C. W. Nash it has always maintained itself aloof from any financial embarrassment.

On the payroll are more than 7,000 skilled workmen.

More than 93% of each car is built entirely by Nash workmen in Nash factories.

Bankers everywhere praise the discretion and judgment that have directed the conduct of this company from the outset.

Nash Executives Always Accessible to Dealers

The dealer, however small, is always welcomed at the Nash plants.

Here are no closed offices, no barricades of secretaries to pass before you reach one of the officials.

Dealers' problems are Mr. Nash's problems. You can count upon true co-operation and genuine help.

Men long in the organization call it a great big partnership.

Everywhere there is the spirit of friendly association.

You'll find your efforts properly appreciated.

Our Representative Will Be Here Next Week

In next week's paper we will announce the arrival of a Nash representative.

He will gladly talk to you then. Be sure to watch this paper.

Get in touch with him at once. This is your opportunity and you ought to make the most of it.

Just drop us a letter at once saying you are interested in becoming a dealer.

You can do this right away. Then the Nash representative will call you upon arrival.

Simply write your name and address and phone number and state you are interested in getting into business for yourself with the Nash line.

All communications will be treated confidentially

FARM BUREAU WORK

Extension work in 24 projects is being laid out at the joint planning meetings of the Farm Bureau now being held in 22 communities. In the men's division the crops project with its lime, potato seed plots and top dressing grassland subdivisions, has enrolled the largest number of cooperators thus far. In Andover, Roxbury, Canton, Rumford and Lovell there is, also, much interest in the timber estimating demonstrations of the forestry project and demonstration meetings have been planned. In the women's department clothing and millinery work has, as would be expected, enrolled the largest number of cooperators, while more women than ever before are taking hold of the home conveniences and foods work.

Meetings were held as follows: Denmark, Tuesday, Dec. 18; Fryeburg Center, Wednesday; Brownfield Thursday; Hiram, Friday. 100 lantern slide pictures will be shown at each meeting, beginning at 10.30 a. m.. Chairmen in charge of arrangements in the respective communities are: Fred E. Colby, Denmark; A. J. Smart, Fryeburg; C. E. Spring, Brownfield; R. N. Lowell, Hiram.

Coming Basketball Season

Roscoe McKay, manager of N. H. S. basketball team, has a strong list of school clubs to present local fans the next three months and a lively winter may be expected. All teams in the following schedule are said to be fast and ready to give Coach Roy Luce and his boys a smart show. That's what the rooters want, provided clean playing is featured. Intentional fowling and questionable tricks are not tolerated by the real sporting element here.

Two games on the boys' list have been played with eleven more games booked. Six will be staged in Norway Oprea House and five out of town with a question mark on four chances, either pending or open dates.

Manager Eldith Joslin has the girls booked solid and has some classy teams on their calling list and they will, no doubt, make a good account of themselves. This group of live players deserve a busy season with the general belief that the outfit will hang up fully as many winnings as the boys' team. Anna B. Longfellow is coach and has developed a hard playing outfit.

OUR COMMUNITY

(By Bertha B. Packard, Bryant's Pond, Me.)

Tell me not in mournful accents
That the days of long ago,
And the ways of our forefathers
Far surpass the ways we know.

In our school we study civics
And, to do our daily task,
We must often gather data
That our textbooks may not ask.

Only last week now, for instance,
"Our Community" we took
As our subject. Mr. Perham
Kindly loaned to us a book.

Called "A History of Woodstock,"
After school I scanned it o'er,
Noting many facts of interest
That I had not known before.

One especial date of interest
'Mong the many, many more,
Was the opening of the first post-office,
Year of 1824.

Later years brought many changes,
And of these I mention one,
A post-office was established
Here, in 1851.

It was in the same year also,
That the Grand Trunk Line went through,
If you think those times were better,
Let me state a fact or two.

Previous to the time I mention,
They had mail but once a day,
And 'twas brought to them on horseback
From South Paris,—miles away.

Then another thing I noticed,
('Tis enough to start our tears),
From the time of the first settlers
There was no school for sixteen years.

Lest you criticise unduly,
Pioneers of days now flown,
Please consider difficulties
That across their paths were thrown.

Farms to clear,—and crops to gather—
Roads to build—'twas no light task;
Money then did not so easily
Come within the farmer's grasp.

Do you wonder who the settlers
Were, who first dared usurpt their fate?
They were Christopher and Solomon Bryant,
Back in 1798.

Soon the town was incorporated,
'Twas not long ago, I ween,
It observed its hundredth birthday
In the year 1915.

We have seen the town's advancement,
For we now can point with pride
At our buildings, roads and bridges,
And our industries beside.

We've a High School, there's none better
Of its size for miles around,
We've a library, and churches
And a Grange, where friends are found.

Many citizens we might mention
With a pardonable pride
Who, through years from past to present
Helped our town, and towns outside.

There are cottages and dwellings
Built around our lovely lake,
Owned by city people, mostly,
Who, when autumn comes, forsake

Us, to go back to their business;
But when June again comes round,
In the village by the lake shore
There once more they will be found.

We've a spool mill—and a factory
Owned by Senator Fernald here,
Where the corn is brought for canning,
By our farmers, far and near.

There is also a new factory
Which we trust will soon begin
Operations that will surely
Help to bring new residents in.

And if those first hardy settlers
Knew the progress has been made
Since they first attacked this wilderness
With their axe and saw and spade,

I feel sure they'd think as I do,
That if they could have their choice
'Twixt the old days and the present,
They'd say "present" with one voice.

Then thank God for all the blessings,
Which your thrift and His good grace,
Through the years now gone forever
Have brought to this well-loved place.

Let us try to make the coming years
As fruitful as the past,
Filled with works that will, to others
Seem worth while, for such shall last.

THE MODERN "NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

'Twas the night before Christmas—there comes a great roar,
And Santa is here in his airship once more.
But as he came up and started to land
He heard a strange noise he could not understand.

The Jones's had got their new "wireless" strung
And in it St Nicholas' fine glider hung.
Old Santa swore softly and stepped on the gas,
The quicker the remnants of radio to pass.

And I was aroused from my slumber and bed
In season to hear what old Santa Claus said.
Quick he threw o'er the side, the games, books and toys
Designed to be given to Jones's girls and boys.

And said, as he swiftly flew far away,
"I'm drat, drab, dratted if I will stay.
In a country so modern there's no place to land
It's more than a fellow like me can stand."

"I sold my fine reindeer and beautiful sleigh
To be up to date and 'fly' on my way."
"But I have discovered that old times are best,
Wherever you're living, north, south, east or west."

Christmas Programs

The schools were crowded with parents Friday afternoon, when Christmas program and trees were the order of the day. At the Village building, the pupils of each room presented a program after which gifts from the decorated trees were distributed. Each of the schools had several chorus songs, while the following children in the Primary Room gave recitations; Wilfred Springer, Florence Stevens, Rebecca Johnson. Two short Christmas plays were presented and a duet was sung by Wilfred Springer and Howard Kiesman. In the Intermediate Room, in addition to the chorus songs and a Christmas play by five children the following pupils gave recitations: Mary Leadbetter, Audrey Pendexter, Bertha Rogers, Esther Gaffney and Nettie Keefe. Ten pupils of grades seven and eight gave a dramatization of the "Birds' Christmas Carol." Leora Kiesman, Cora Howard and Redgeley Kiesman gave recitations and the school joined in several songs.

Schools in town closed Friday and the teachers left to spend their vacations at their homes as follows: Miss Hunter to Benton, Miss Ellis to Skowhegan, Mr. Morse to Hanover, Miss Lambert to East Corinth, Miss Kelley to Everett, Mass., Miss Wyman to Benton, Mr. Berry to Woodfords. Willis Farrington of West Fryeburg received an injury one day recently while at work about his place. He was working on a ladder and in some way received a blow on the head which he did not consider serious at the time, but which left him with a severe headache which continued all that night. The following day at about noon he decided to lie down for a short rest and when, a little later, at starting to arise, he found that he was unable to do so nor was he able to speak. It was soon found that one side was paralyzed. Medical aid was summoned and he rallied to this treatment and his condition now seems quite favorable.

ED. HOWE TELLS TRUTHS

A greatly excited gentleman has started a movement to abolish schools, as he contends that they do more harm than good. Children are trained in idleness and impudence by the schools, he says.

It cannot be denied that many serious charges may be fairly brought against our educational system. Some of our great educators are as harmful men as some of our great statesmen, because demand too much; more than can possibly be achieved. I know excellent parents who say bluntly that their children have been made hopeless cads by our modern educational system.

Still, the task is to reform the schools, not to destroy them. No one may find just fault with an educatin, but our educational institutions have adopted extreme styles. Many communities have been almost bankrupted by unnecessary school taxes, and have had bad schools. There is not a real educator anywhere who does not know the entire system is functioning badly. All worthy educators know there is growing objection to this overloading.

BEWARE OF THE CHRISTMAS CANDLE!

"How far that little candle throws his beams!" Had Shakespeare penned that line today, candor might have prompted him perhaps to add, "And nowhere does it's light rest with a more baleful flicker than on the country's fire loss record."

In America, of late years, there has been an unhappy attempt to return the candle to vogue, and Christmas is probably the one ocasion upon which many people seem to feel that they cannot get along without this regressive form of lighting a decorated tree with these little, exposed flames is plain enough to the vast majority of sensible people, who are abandoning candles in favor of the much safer—when properly made and installed—and altogether more effective colored electric lamp sets. Illuminating trees attractively by means of focused spotlights also is safe and this method is growing in popularity.

It is not always recognized, however, that a risk equally great is run by folk who place burning candles, fitted usually into unstable holders, at windows, where a draft from without or the slightest movement of air within the house, may bring into contact with the flames light draperies, dry holly wreaths and other readily ignitable decorations.

To display a light where it may be seen by passers-by, is, of course, a pretty piece of sympathy but it has, alas, often been converted into a beacon to guide the fire department, and from a token of Christmas cheer has become a signal of distress. Symbolism achieved at the cost of human life, and of property destruction amounting annually to thousands of dollars, is bought at too steep a price to be desirable.

As for the general employment of candles about the house at this time and other seasons, it would be more than a little amusing to hear the outcry that would follow an interruption of the local supply of electricity and gas, making the candle a matter not of choice but of unromantic necessity.

According to the statistical records of The National Board of Fire Underwriters, the use of so-called open lights results in nearly three million dollars' worth of property destruction in this country every year, while to them are due, as well, many of the 15,000 yearly deaths by fire and one of the commonest forms of open light is the candle. Of course the candle is not the only Yuletide hazard, but since it is an important one, why should it be tolerated unnecessarily? Surely, no one can wish to do anything that might cast the shadow of a tradgedy across the celebration of Christmas.

Willard STORAGE BATTERY

How Leakage is Prevented

In this battery, external electrical leakage is made practically impossible by a wide air gap between cells. It would take a pressure of about 2,000 volts to jump the gap between adjacent cells, and a still higher voltage to bridge the even wider gap between rows of cells.

In preventing electrical leakage, the use of glass jars as containers for the individual cells plays a big part, glass being a superior insulating material.

Another reason for the use of these glass jars is that they enable one to see the condition of every cell at all times—when water should be added and just how much; when the plates are beginning to show signs of requiring recharging and, also, when they are sufficiently recharged, as indicated by the "gassing" in the cell.

The connectors, too, are a feature of no little importance. For one thing, they are many times the size of the wires commonly used between cells in a dry battery and much heavier than those used in the ordinary radio storage battery, so that they cannot be easily broken.

GIVE THE FARM A NAME THIS WINTER

Name the farm this winter. Its a game the whole family can play. And both as a business and as a home the farm needs a name.

Certain states, notably South Dakota, believe so strongly in names for farms that they provide for official registration of farm names at the State House. This is done not only to provide a registered trade name for the products of the place, and thus permits the owner to build a trade reputation, but as a contribution to local tradition and a sense of community identity.

Eastern farmers, in general, more often name their farms than do those in the West. In some regions where farming has been longer established and where family traditions of farming are stronger nearly every farm is named.

Naming a farm is not easy. A name that sounds pretty but doesn't mean anything soon palls. Get, if you can, a name descriptive of the place, but try to avoid such hackneyed names as Meadowbrook, Hilltop, Fairview, or Sunnyside. If the fields do not offer some characteristic from which the place might be named, consider the house. There is a farm in Connecticut called "Twin Doors," and one in Maryland called "Green Gables."

Cynical names such as "Brown's Folly" never pay, and names composed as a joke, while all right as a joke, wont do on a letterhead. A New York man, it is said, named his place "Rheumatiz," "because it had a crick in the back." Thinking up all sorts of names to call your farm is good fireside sport and it pays to find the right name and to use it on a farm letterhead.

Since time began, we people have been careless about taking advantage of opportunity. The Lord started Adam with a farm that was complete with good soil, fruit trees, berry bushes, and a river supplying plenty of water. But Adam and his wife didn't appreciate their advantages, and violated one lonely restriction and had to give up the farm. There is one instance where the board of trade, the raidroads, the spectulators and the town folks were not to blame for the loss of a farm.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. Catarrhal Deafness requires constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy, Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

FRYEBURG

Fryeburg to Have Gymnasium

Fryeburg Academy wants a gymnasium, and a drive has been launched for that purpose. Thursday evening a benefit picture show and dance was given at K. of P. Hall and the sum of $93.44 netted toward the fund. The affair was under the direction of Mrs. O. Pike and Miss Mary Hastings, while Mrs. Harold Perkins had charge of a candy sale during the evening. The show was followed by a dance.

Several years ago a fund was started toward a gymnasium and the sum of $70 was raised. Nothing was done, however, until February of this year when under the direction or Principal LaCase, the project again was taken up. Since that time students and teachers have raised $725.65 in addition to which $100 has been pledged. This money has been raised by taking subscriptions for a magazine, by the Academy Fair in May, by a Tag Day conducted at Fryeburg Fair, by class funds and by subscriptions among the students and teachers.

An estimate has been made as to the cost of the direct building and some equipment, and it is believed that between $10,000 and $12,000 will be sufficient. Of that amount friends and alumni of the Academy have been asked to raise $4,000, and while no definite vote has been taken, it is generally understood that the trustees are in favor of providing the balance.

Various methods for raising this money are under consideration and much interest is being manifested. A Town Committee, consisting of ten of the prominent business men of the town, has been chosen. This committee consists of Alvin Merrill, Asa O. Pike, Hugh W. Hastings, James W. Eastman, George W. Weston, Elroy LaCase, Ezra W. Bosworth, Edward E. Hastings, Walter and Charles Fox.

KEEP ON ADVERTISING

In it's widely read house organ, one of the largest operating utility companies prints editorially:

"'If a public utility, like a gas or electric light company, is carrying all the load it can, should it continue to advertise?'' And then answers this question thus: "'By all means—not to increase the demand for it's service, but to keep the interest of the public in the company alive. It cannot afford to allow people to forget that the company is one of the city's most important enter prises and stands ready to do it's part in it's upbuilding.' To increase business is one of the essential purposes of advertising, but it is but one essential. There is no store or business worth advertising at all, which does not possess many facts that would be "good news" to tell the public through advertising space in the newspapers, whether more business is desired or not. To gain new business is one problem of the merchant or manufacturer; to hold trade already established is quite another problem. Judicious advertising is the thing that goes a long way toward solving both.''
